Presidential Commission on Status of Women Employees and Employees of Color

The new commission on campus hopes to give insight on how women employees and employees of color are doing, feeling, and thinking. I was able to get responses from one staff, one faculty, and one administrator.

Kelly Wright:
The Physical Plant Building Coordinator, has been with us for 6 years. Along with this commission, she is also on the Staff Advisory Committee.

Laura Reeck:
a professor in the Modern and Classical Languages and the International Studies departments, has been with Allegheny College for 16 years now. She also founded and helps run the Global Citizen Scholars Program.

Carly Masiroff:
Associate Director of the Learning Commons, has been part of the Allegheny community for 3 and a half years and sits on the Administrative Advisory Committee.

Could you tell me a little more about this committee? (Mission, charge, goals, etc.)

Kelly Wright:
We are charged with identifying themes we feel are of major importance to the campus. We are looking at many different things, some of which are morale, retention, professional development, etc.

Laura Reeck:
We have decided to pursue three areas of inquiry in smaller working groups. Our goal is to have recommendations (action-items) in each of these areas when the report is issued.

Carly Masiroff:
These groups are Professional development and growth, Recruitment and retention, and Morale and climate. The deadline for the report...is the beginning of Fall 2019.

What is something that has surprised you during the meetings?

Kelly Wright:
How many people were feeling the same way about different circumstances on campus. It is also quite surprising how much information is out there and also how much is not. Even with today’s technology, information is harder to find than you would think.

Laura Reeck:
The level of acknowledgement and agreement among the commission members that we are at a critical juncture and our shared desire to see the climate at the college improve are motivating all of us and giving us a sense of duty. Though coming from all different areas of campus, we are on the same page, which is a tremendous starting.

Carly Masiroff:
How many things are espoused on this campus, specifically in writing, but are not put to practice. As well as how many things are not in writing, specifically policies and procedures.

What are your hopes for this committee?

Kelly Wright: While we are fully aware that we can’t fix everything, we hope to strengthen the employee bonds with each other and Allegheny College on the whole. Ideally, we hope to create a work environment that makes us the standard that other colleges want to aspire to. We see this as a great opportunity to make some very positive changes.

Laura Reeck: My hopes are that the recommendation (action-items) to come out of the commission work will be heard and realized in the most timely manner possible. I do not think there is time to lose. Also, the report will ultimately be delivered to the next Allegheny president’s desk. I hope that they will be attentive to and motivated by the report.

Carly Masiroff: To really dig into the policies and procedures of the institution and make sure they make sense for us and build into the future of the institution.

Conclusion

We have amazing staff, faculty, and administrators on campus, and some who are aware of others’ struggles already. Others are just now learning but are taking the time to show they care. In times of transition and uncertainty, it is important to have those we can turn to, and with the way this commission is headed, it’s looking like that will continue to be the truth for this campus.

If you ever have questions or concerns, please feel free to bring those to SAC, and we will discuss them. We hold your voice as our highest priority, as we are the representing committee for it.

Allegheny received a $7 million gift from Henry and Patricia Bush Tippie to renovate Bentley Hall, and we matched it! That gives us $14 million total to renovate! Here are some Bentley fun facts:

1. Construction began in 1820, but the building was not finished until 1827.
2. “On the 150th anniversary of Founder’s Day, President Lawrence Pelletier received a phone call suggesting he inspect the Bentley Hall belfry. A calf had been placed on the roof by a group of women students.” - Courtesy of Merrick Archives
